

AN INVESTIGATION OF THE FEATURES OF INNOVATIVE DEVELOPMENT OF PUBLIC MANAGEMENT SYSTEM IN UKRAINE

Lucykiv I.V.

PhD, Senior Lecturer of the Department of Management in Production,
Ternopil Ivan Pul'uj National Technical University

Sorokivska O.A.

PhD, Professor of the Department of Management in Production,
Ternopil Ivan Pul'uj National Technical University

Kotovska I.V.

PhD Docent of the Department of Management in Production,
Ternopil Ivan Pul'uj National Technical University

The article is devoted to the actual research issues of modern trends and features of innovative development of public management in Ukraine.

The innovative development of public management system as a necessary component for ensuring the effectiveness of the country's political development, and an important element of the national competitiveness has been proven in this article.

The definition of "innovation" and "public management" has been considered and their role in formation state policy has been determined. The main problems in the public management system which determined its current situation in the country have been revealed and analyzed.

An innovative component in the structure of public management system has been pointed out and its author's definition has been given. The innovative management tools which can be used by public authorities in Ukraine have been identified based on the analysis of foreign experience.

The role and meaning of innovative development of public management has been analyzed in the article and the author's definition for this category has been given. The basic principles of innovative development that provide the ideological and democratic basis of public management have been highlighted.

It has been determined an innovation as the key strategic resource in achieving goals of public management and providing high quality of management services, which in turn requires the relevant knowledge and skills of staff.

The measures for innovative development of public management in Ukraine have been proposed.

The conclusion has been made that public management is aimed at ensuring a clear interaction of business, politics and society, making strategically important decisions based on innovative management tools and technologies as well as at satisfying the needs of end users (society).