The basis for ensuring an adequate level of economic security of an enterprise as an entrepreneurial structure is to support its sustainable and maximum effective functioning at present and to accumulate sufficient potential for balanced development and stable growth in the future. In the conditions of aggravation of economic crisis the question of economic security gained special relevance. Prevention of negative influence of a complex of external and internal threats is possible by ensuring timely reaction to them and creation of conditions for safe development by effective management of economic security within the general enterprise management system. To increase the efficiency of management and provide the necessary level of economic security, to support the vital functions of the enterprise and the realization of its potential have been developed theoretical principles concerning the management stability of the enterprise to ensure economic security for its development. The basis for ensuring a sufficient level of economic security of the enterprise as a business structure is to support its continued and most effective functioning at the moment and piling up sufficient capacity for balanced development and sustainable growth in the future. This consistency is considered as the system's ability to keep the intended path of movement, it means, to maintain the intended mode of operation. The results of the enterprise are largely determined by the external environment, namely, the enterprise as an open system depends on the atmosphere in the supply of resources, energy, personnel. The level of information-psychological stability of personnel is determined by the information-psychological stability of its individual employees. The level of protection of an employee as an element of personnel is determined by the level of its security in all possible states in which it can be located, and in all possible states of transitions between them. A comprehensive assessment of the level of personnel security is proposed, which is determined by the integral indicator and uses the measure of its protection in various positions.
